STEPHEN R. GREGG PARK

Welcome

Stephen R. Gregg Park maximizes its nearly 100 acres of parkland in Bayonne by integrating active and passive recreation along the waterfront. Ball fields, tennis courts, basketball courts, bocce courts, horseshoe pits, and a running track are featured throughout the park for exercise and for play. Its tranquil passive sections are inviting locations to relax and enjoy the greenery and Newark Bay waterfront. With all of its features and public park facilities, it is an enjoyable and convenient destination for Hudson County families. Last, but certainly not least, Stephen R. Gregg Park offers some of the best waterfront views in the region!

Park Features

Situated in Bayonne on the East bank of Newark Bay, the park offers a dramatic waterfront view along its half-mile promenade that you wouldn't want to miss! Walk, jog, or relax along the water's edge and enjoy the Bay's sights and cool breeze. Fishermen can even cast off of the 48th Street Bay front at the gazebo fishing pier. Within the park, you can enjoy a stroll along the park's network of walkways and park bridges along the pond, cherry blossom trees, and gorgeous ornamental garden. The park also draws visitors to its picturesque backdrops along the stone structures and gazebo. In addition, the County plans to introduce free WiFi-Internet access to the park within the year.

History

Established in 1916, Stephen R. Gregg Park, originally named Bayonne Park, was designed by Charles N. Lowrie. In the park's earlier years, visitors enjoyed a line of fountains at the entrance at West 40th Street and frequently used the park's shoreline to lower traps into the Newark Bay to catch crabs. The park was renamed in honor of life-long Bayonne resident, Stephen R. Gregg, who was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor in World War II for his courageous charge on a German outpost in France enabling the rescue of seven severely wounded American soldiers. Mr. Gregg was also a member of the Hudson County Sheriff's Department for 51 years and retired as chief of court officers.

Recreation

The park provides a wide variety of sports facilities for children and adults. Throughout the park, you will find: seven baseball/softball fields, eight soccer fields, ten tennis courts, two lighted basketball courts, an exercise/cross country course, running track and field, football field, bocce court, and horseshoe pit. Children can also enjoy outdoor recreation at Stephen R. Gregg Park's playground and spray pool in the summertime.
